

Megan Owens

Megan is a current MSc in International Sustainable Management Candidate at the American University of Paris with a graduation date of May 2023. She holds a BA in Marketing with a double minor in Middle Eastern Pluralities and Global Communications obtained from the American University of Paris. Megan is in the process of opening a mezcal bar in Paris and has previously worked in social media, public relations, and market research. She is interested in sustainable finance, creative direction, sustainability of fashion and obviously tequila/mezcal.

Hana Kamal

Hana (she/her/hers) is an equity strategist who brings a lifelong commitment to building a just world where everyone lives with the dignity of having their histories and experiences valued. She employs skills in strategic planning, organizational development, and facilitation to build the capacity of institutions and individuals to make meaningful change towards equity for all. Hana's work involves strategic visioning and implementation guidance for equity transformation, including hands-on coaching and support to individuals in their efforts to embed this lens into their day-to-day work.

Hana holds a bachelor's degree in Political Science from New York University and a 2017–2018 Fellow in NYU Wagner's Fellowship for Emerging Leaders in Public Service. She is a candidate for an MSc in International Management at the American University of Paris.

Hugo Bretin

Hugo is a Master's student in International Management at the American University of Paris, he intends to graduate in Spring 2024. He chose to approach both 'Sustainability' and 'Mission-Based organizations' educational tracks. His previous professional experience in supply chain management and personal motives led him to somehow get involved in humanitarian volunteering in Lebanon for 2 years. Hugo is interested in charities, NGOs, mission-driven organizations, or even sustainable business practices such as low-techs-based solutions.

Nadien Robles

Currently pursuing an M.Sc. in International Management at the American University of Paris in France. Attended New York University Shanghai and earned a B.S. in Business and Finance, studying in China, Italy, United Arab Emirates, and New York City. Interested in entering the luxury fashion or personal care industry upon completion of master's degree in early 2024.

Sultan Alabdulkarim

Sultan has a bachelors degree in International Economics with a minor in International Business Administration from the American University of Paris. He has worked in his family's business since age 16 in both France and Saudi Arabia where he gained valuable insight into real estate ranging from transactions and acquisitions to renovations and financing. Sultan is driven by passion which includes meeting new people and starting new projects. He is a current master's degree candidate in International Management Candidate at the American University of Paris with a graduation date of May 2023.

